

Table of Contents

- Acknowledgments p. ix
- Prologue: Cuisine as Architectural Invention Phyllis Pray Bober p. 1
- 1 Introduction Paulette Singley and Jamie Horwitz p. 5
 - Place Settings
- 2 Culinary Manifestations of the Genius Loci Allen S. Weiss p. 21
- 3 Taste Buds: Cultivating a Canadian Cuisine Susan Herrington p. 33
- 4 Consuming the Colonies Patricia Morton p. 51
- 5 Local Food Products, Architecture, and Territorial Identity Ferruccio Trabalzi p. 71
- 6 Too Much Sugar Clare Cardinal-Pett p. 91
 - Philosophy in the Kitchen
- 7 Cuisine and the Compass of Ornament: A Note on the Architecture of Babette's Feast Daniel S. Friedman p. 115
- 8 Gingerbread Houses: Art, Food, and the Postwar Architecture of Domestic Space Barbara L. Miller p. 131
- 9 Science Designed and Digested: Between Victorian and Modernist Food Regimes Mark Hamin p. 151
- 10 The Missing Guest: The Twisted Topology of Hospitality Donald Kunze p. 169
- 11 Semiotica Ab Edendo, Taste in Architecture Marco Frascari p. 191
 - Table Rules
- 12 Morning, and Melancholia Laura Letinsky p. 207
- 13 Table Talk David Leatherbarrow p. 211
- 14 Food to Go: The Industrialization of the Picnic Mikesch Muecke p. 229
- 15 Table Settings: The Pleasures of Well-Situated Eating Alex T. Anderson p. 247
- 16 Eating Space Jamie Horwitz p. 259
 - Embodied Taste
- 17 Butcher's White: Where the Art Market Meets the Meat Market in New York City Dorita Hannah p. 279
- 18 Delectable Decoration: Taste and Spectacle in Jean-Francois de Bastide's La Petite Maison Rodolphe el-Khoury p. 301
- 19 Dali's Edible Splits: Faces, Tastes, and Spaces in Delirium John C. Welchman p. 313
- 20 Hard to Swallow: Mortified Geometry and Abject Form Paulette Singley p. 339
 - Contributors p. 361
 - Index p. 365