

Table of Contents

- Introduction: states and industrialization in the global periphery
- Part I Galloping Ahead: Korea
- 1 The colonial origins of a modern political economy: the Japanese lineage of Korea's cohesive-capitalist state
- 2 The rhee interregnum: saving South Korea for cohesive capitalism
- 3 A cohesive-capitalist state reimposed: Park Chung Hee and rapid industrialization
- Part II Two Steps Forward, One Step Back: Brazil
- 4 Invited dependency: fragmented state and foreign resources in Brazil's early industrialization
- 7 India's fragmented-multiclass state and protected industrialization
- 5 Grow now, pay later: state indebted industrialization in modern Brazil
- Part III Slow but Steady: India
- 6 Origins of a fragmented-multiclass state and a sluggish economy: colonial India
- Part IV Dashed Expectations: Nigeria
- 8 Colonial Nigeria: origins of a neopatrimonial state and a commodity-exporting economy
- 9 Sovereign Nigeria: neopatrimonialism and failure of industrialization
- Conclusion: understanding states and state intervention in the global periphery