

Table of Contents

- General Introduction p. 1
- I Some cautions about our moral judgments p. 2
- II Four easy reasons to ignore world poverty p. 7
- III Sophisticated defenses of our acquiescence in world poverty p. 13
- IV Does our new global economic order really not harm the poor? p. 18
- V Responsibilities and reforms p. 26
- 1 Human Flourishing and Universal Justice p. 33
- 1.0 Introduction p. 33
- 1.1 Social justice p. 37
- 1.2 Paternalism p. 40
- 1.3 Justice in first approximation p. 43
- 1.4 Essential refinements p. 45
- 1.5 Human rights p. 50
- 1.6 Specification of human rights and responsibilities for their realization p. 54
- 1.7 Conclusion p. 56
- 2 How Should Human Rights be Conceived? p. 58
- 2.0 Introduction p. 58
- 2.1 From natural law to rights p. 60
- 2.2 From natural rights to human rights p. 62
- 2.3 Official disrespect p. 65
- 2.4 The libertarian critique of social and economic rights p. 70
- 2.5 The critique of social and economic rights as "manifesto rights" p. 73
- 2.6 Disputes about kinds of human rights p. 75
- 3 Loopholes in Moralities p. 77
- 3.0 Introduction p. 77
- 3.1 Types of incentives p. 79
- 3.2 Loopholes p. 81
- 3.3 Social arrangements p. 82
- 3.4 Case 1: the converted apartment building p. 83
- 3.5 Case 2: the homelands policy of white South Africa p. 86
- 3.6 An objection p. 88
- 3.7 Strengthening p. 89
- 3.8 Fictional histories p. 91
- 3.9 Puzzles of equivalence p. 93
- 3.10 Conclusion p. 95
- 4 Moral Universalism and Global Economic Justice p. 97
- 4.0 Introduction p. 97
- 4.1 Moral universalism p. 98
- 4.2 Our moral assessments of national and global economic orders p. 100
- 4.3 Some factual background about the global economic order p. 102
- 4.4 Conceptions of national and global economic justice contrasted p. 106
- 4.5 Moral universalism and David Miller's contextualism p. 108
- 4.6 Contextualist moral universalism and John Rawls's moral conception p. 110
- 4.7 Rationalizing divergent moral assessments through a double standard p. 114

- 4.8 Rationalizing divergent moral assessments without a double standard p. 116
- 4.9 The causal role of global institutions in the persistence of severe poverty p. 118
- 4.10 Conclusion p. 122
- 5 The Bounds of Nationalism p. 124
- 5.0 Introduction p. 124
- 5.1 Common nationalism: priority for the interests of compatriots p. 126
- 5.2 Lofty nationalism: the justice-for-compatriots priority p. 135
- 5.3 Explanatory nationalism: the deep significance of national borders p. 145
- 5.4 Conclusion p. 150
- 6 Achieving Democracy p. 152
- 6.0 Introduction p. 152
- 6.1 The structure of the problem faced by fledgling democracies p. 154
- 6.2 Reducing the expected rewards of coups d'etat p. 158
- 6.3 Undermining the borrowing privilege of authoritarian predators p. 159
- 6.4 Undermining the resource privilege of authoritarian predators p. 168
- 6.5 Conclusion p. 173
- 7 Cosmopolitanism and Sovereignty p. 174
- 7.0 Introduction p. 174
- 7.1 Institutional cosmopolitanism based on human rights p. 175
- 7.2 The idea of state sovereignty p. 183
- 7.3 Some main reasons for a vertical dispersal of sovereignty p. 187
- 7.4 The shaping and reshaping of political units p. 196
- 7.5 Conclusion p. 201
- 8 Eradicating Systemic Poverty: Brief for a Global Resources Dividend p. 202
- 8.0 Introduction p. 202
- 8.1 Radical inequality and our responsibility p. 203
- 8.2 Three grounds of injustice p. 205
- 8.3 A moderate proposal p. 210
- 8.4 The moral argument for the proposed reform p. 214
- 8.5 Is the reform proposal realistic? p. 216
- 8.6 Conclusion p. 220
- 9 Pharmaceutical Innovation: Must We Exclude the Poor? p. 222
- 9.0 Introduction p. 222
- 9.1 The TRIPS Agreement and its aftermath p. 224
- 9.2 The argument from beneficial consequences p. 230
- 9.3 Toward a better way of stimulating research and development of essential medicines p. 236
- 9.4 Differential pricing p. 238
- 9.5 The public-good strategy for extending access to essential medicines p. 240
- 9.6 A full-pull plan for the provision of pharmaceuticals p. 244
- 9.7 Specifying and implementing the basic full-pull idea p. 253
- 9.8 Justifying the plan to affluent citizens and their representatives p. 256
- Last Words p. 262
- Notes p. 265
- Bibliography p. 314
- Index p. 328

